Geoff Bond: Evolutionary
Lifestyle Anthropologist

Geoff Bond: Evolutionary Lifestyle Anthropologist

Geoff lectures on the pressing concerns of health professionals today including how to prevent the progression and relapse of today's major diseases such as Cancer, Heart Disease, Osteoporosis, Obesity, Diabetes and Alzheimer's.

He explains how the mismatch between the lifestyle designed by our evolutionary past and the way we live today is making us sick. With this knowledge, health professionals can help their patients to aid recovery and avoid relapses.

MOST REQUESTED TOPICS

Fear Not Cancer:

Our evolutionary history gives us revolutionary insights for avoidance and remission.

Evolutionary Medicine & Psychology:

Nutrition, physical activity, sunshine & stress are all factors in lifestyle diseases. Give patients the tools to prevent relapse & enjoy the prospect of a new lease of life.

Integrative Medicine:

Science-based lifestyle principles to enrich medical practice - Insights from our Pleistocene origins.

Darwinian Insights:

Fact and fiction about cholesterol and CVD; dairy and bone health; the demonization of sunshine; 8 glasses of water a day, and other shibboleths.

Geoff Bond is an authoritative and interesting speaker who delivers a stimulating talk. This is a well researched, honest and fresh approach with no gimmicks.

Elber Camacho, MD, medical director,
Comprehensive Cancer Center, Palm Springs, CA

After the lecture, the physicians will be able to:

Explain to patients that many of their medical problems are self-inflicted and that the patient has control over the progression or remission of the disease

Advise patients on the lifestyle patterns which support recovery and prevent relapse

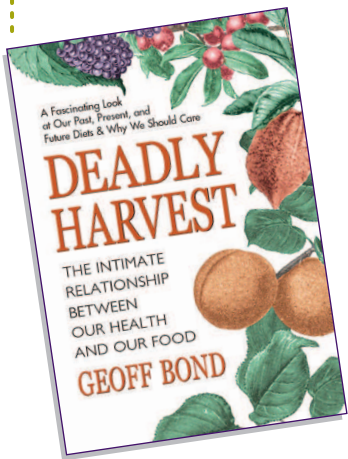

Help patients avoid urban myths & errors of received wisdom
